To Our Shareholders.

This, our Nineteenth Annual Report, is presented in the full confidence engendered by the continued success of the Association.

550 new shares have been issued during the year and loans have been made aggregating the sum of $57,420.

Series numbers 21, 22, 23 and 24, containing 240 shares, were matured and retired since our last report, for which $30,396 were returned for dues paid thereon, and $17,604 as profits on the same; while 198 shares not matured were surrendered and canceled, upon which $2,099.50 was returned to the stockholders for dues paid and $488.25 profits, being at the rate of six per cent interest compounded semi-annually.

The net profits for the year were $14,822.22, of which $742.23 was placed in the Reserve Fund, in accordance with the State Building and Loan Law, which fund now amounts to $4,660.76; the amount apportioned to Earnings, $12,700.67, while $1,379.32 remains unapportioned.

We have no foreclosures to report and no real estate appears in the statement of assetts, proving conclusively the conservative and intelligent discretion used by your Directors in making loans.

That the Association has been economically managed is shown by the fact that the current expenses for the year, including $211.56 paid for State Licenses, was only $2,670.51, while taxes continue to be very high, the amount paid upon the mortgages being $4,253.45.

As the demand for loans for the building of new homes is quite large and our ability to make them is governed entirely by the amount received each month, we would suggest to every stockholder that he or she present a copy of this report, explaining and expatiating upon the merits thereof, to their companions, co-workers or neighbors, to the end that they may become shareholders and help to increase our funds and ability to meet the demand, remembering that "every little helps" and when helping the Association you are helping yourself.

Trusting that our efforts and the success attained has met with your cordial approval, we have the honor to be,

Yours for further success and the building of many more homes in the county,

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS,
By P. P. Chamberlain, President.

Geo. W. Lovie, Secretary.

REMINISCENSES OF OUR PIONEER DAYS

Gleanings From the Records Left By Men Who Laid the Foundation of Our County.

BUILDING OF FIRST RAILROAD

Some Incidents of the Building of the Original San Francisco and San Jose Railroad.

With this week's issue is commenced a history of the events connected with the building of the "San Francisco and San Jose Railroad," the pioneer section of what is now one of the main lines of the great Southern Pacific Railway.

While the general design of the series of sketches of the reminiscenses of the men and events of the pioneer days of the settlement and development of the county has been to present a resume of the events in their chronological sequence, rather than the historical pursuit of any particular subject, one event in the history of the development of the county has been considered of sufficient importance to demand its treatment as a separate and practically historical subject. Probably no enterprise has been of greater instrumentality in the development and upbuilding, not only of San Mateo but its neighboring counties of San Francisco and Santa Clara, than the building of what now constitutes an important part of the great Southern Pacific Railway system. While the original design of the promoters of the plan to connect San Jose and San Francisco by rail was a purely local enterpris, the idea had scarcely found expression by its promoters than it was hailed as the entering wedge of the plan for the construction of the great overland highway which was to replace the slow moving ox team and the pony express. Thus did the promoters of this few miles of insignificant railway "build better than they knew."

Nor was the work of these public benefators destined to be completed without the usual fate of serious opposition. While comparatively the new enterprise was not a costly one, involving what at this time would be considered a small expenditure of capital, even the amount required was far from easily secured. Not only was the practibility of the enterprise questioned, but the motive of the promoters was seriously impugned. Even those who were not slow to recognize the value of a railway in the development of the section, were slow to respond to the call for financial assistance, either of a private or public nature. This lack of support, however failed to daunt the enterprising spirits who had undertaken the work in a spirit of public enterprise rather than of private gain, and despite calumny and covert opposition the work was pushed to completion.

Probably but few of the myriad of people who now almost daily avail themselves of the splendid transportation facilities of the Southern Pacific Railway between San Francisco and San Jose and the numerous intermediate points, with its frequent and rapid train service, have ever given thought to the history of the original con trucion of the line, then covering but sparcely settled country. Nor can those who have not the privilege of some recolections of the earlier railways fully appreciate the rapid advancement made in this means of transportation.

While every effort will be made to give the details of this important work, unfortunately much of interest must be found lacking. This in a great measure will be found due to the failure of the local press to fully grasp the extent of public interest in the work, and thus leading to a lack of those complete reports of the progress of the construction work that is devoted to matters of this character at this date.

The first definite action looking to the construction of what was originally known as the San Francisco and San Jose Railroad was at a public meeting held at the City Hall in San Jose on May 7, 1859. Realizing the importance of railroads as a factor in the needed development of the State, the Legislature at its session in January of that year passed an act empowering counties to subscribe to the capital stock of railway companies The meeting was largely attended, and among the leading speakers for the enterprise were Judge Sherwood and J. Lewis, then a leading civil engineer of San Francisco. The proposition for the construction of the road met with much favor among the people who attended the meeting, and it was proposed that Santa Clara County should subscribe $250,000 towards the building of the road. A committee was appointed to draft and circlate among the people an address urging the people of the county to vote in favor of a proposal to issue bonds to this amount for the purpose. In its report of this meeting, which gave but few of the details, the Gazette urged upon the people of San Mateo County the importance of similar action, and even then suggested that this line, if built must be the first link in the great chain which would eventually reach acros the continent. It was also claimed, as has since proven true that the construction of this railway would eventually make San Mateo County the home of many of the wealthy business men of San Francisco.

Although it was found a difficult matter to awaken enthusiasm for the project among the people of San Mateo County, the work was not allowed to drop. Both at San Jose and San Francisco, men of push and influence realized the importance of the proposed road, and shortly after the meeting at San Jose, the question was taken up in organized form in San Francisco, where a general promotion committee was named. The first actual move among the citizens of this county was made on the evening of December 20, 1859, in this city. No special preparations for the meeting had been made, nor had it been determined to hold the meeting until a few hours before it was called, and thus but little notice could be given. During that afternoon, General James A. McDougal, chairman of the general committee of San Francisco arrived in this city, and as soon as a few of the enterprising spirits learned of his presence it was determined to take advantage of the opportunity and call for the meeting was issued. At this meeting, W. T. Gough presided and the merits of the enterprisse was fully discussed by General McDougal in a rather lengthy address. Before the close of the meeting General McDougal asked that a committee be named to cooper-ate on behalf of this county withSan Francisco and Santa Clara. The meeting was then adjourned until the following evening when a committee consisting of C. N. Fox, B. G.Lathrop, W. C. R. Smith, James McCrea, M. Shaffner, A. I. Easton, D. W. Connelly, J. G. Denniston, R. J. Weeks, R. O. Tripp, J. W. Kisling, Charles Clark, John Ames, Geprge C. Johnson, W. B. Maxson and T. G.Phelps was appointed as the representatives of San Mateo County. At this meeting several speeches in favor of the movement were made, notably by Horace Hawes, W. B. Maxson, W. T. Gough and C. N. Fox. While Mr. Hawes favored the construction of he road, he strongly opposed the plan of county aid. He urged that this county was then out of debt and it would in his opinion be against public policy to incur a bonded indebtedness even in favor of a great public benefit.

It was also urged against the bond proposition that the law then in existence failed to protect the interest of the counties as holders of stock subscribed for if the bonds were issued. In April of that year, the Legislature passed a bill authorizing the counties San Francisco, Santa Clara and San Mateo to subscribe for $900,000 of the stock of the San Fracisco and San Jose Railroad, of which this county was to take $100,000. Strong opposition to the plan in this form was evidenced as soon as the nature of the Act became known, it being argued that the stock owned by the counties would constitute but a small minority, and that the public would have no means of control over its investment. In general the provisions of the law met with much opposition, one of the most objectionable features being a requirement that if the bonds were approved by a general vote, the subscriptions to the funds of the company must be made at once, without waiting for the progress of the work. So general was this opposition to the bonding plan that on the 5th of May C. N. Fox resigned as a member and chairman of the committee, publishing a statement of his position.

In the latter part of May, 1860, the San Francisco and San Jose Railroad Company was incorporated with a capital stock of two million dollars, which was stated to be the estimated cost of the construction of the road, including cost of right-of-way, motive power and equipment. The par value of the shares was $100, and the corporate directors were James A McDougal, William S. Lewis, Sherman Day, Treno W. Park and Edward Flint, all being residents of San Francisco except Day, who was from San Jose. At the time of the organization, 486 shares were subscribed for by 35 individuals, the largest subscription being for 50 shares and the smallest for 5. A commission composed of Horace Hawes, William M. Lent, George H. Howard and Thomas Fallon was named to solicit subscriptions to the capital stock.

Burns Result Fatally.

James Hurley, an employee of a furniture company at San Mateo was fatally injured Saturday night by the explosion of a coal oil stove in a shack at Railroad and First avenues. The shack was set on fire by the explosion, the volunteer fire department being called to put out the flames. Hurley was taken to the Red Cross Guild Hospiatl where he died on Monday

CITY WILL PUT BAN ON ALIEN LABORERS

Contractors for Public Works Will be Required to Employ Citizens Exclusively.

WANTS NO TRANSCIENT HELP

Trustees Let Contracts for Sprinkling And Cleaning Streets—Will Use Modern Records.

Trustees Merrill and Hynding, both of whom were out of the city, were the absentees at the adjourned meeting of the Council last Monday evening. In the absence of Chairman Merrill, Trustee Brown was elected to preside at the meeting, on motion of Trustee Rice.

By far the most important action, so far as the general public is concerned, was the expression of a determination to exclude alien labor from public work under all future contracts. The question came up during the consideration of the specifications for the laying of the water mains to connect with the new city reservoir. After the specifications, which had been prepared in the usual form, had been read, Trusee Rice, made the suggestion that some provision be made to protect home labor and exclude the undesirable foreign element, which was too often brought in by contractors as a saving of cost. Mr. Rice expressed the opinion that in all work of this character preference should be given to home labor, and especially should be confined to citizens. This sentiment met the unanimous approval of the Trustees and the City Attorney was directed to prepare a resolution embodying these suggestions as applicable to all future contracts for city work.

For the sweeping of the streets, two bids were presented. J. D. Smith bid for the work at the rate of $72 per month. Joseph Martin submitted a bid of $70 per month and, on motion of Trustee Beeger, was awarded the contract.

J. D. Smith, the only bidder, was given the contract for the sprinkling of the streets at $6.75 per day. This contract will require practically double the work of the past year.

C. A. Hooper presented a deed to the city of land for aleyways through block 10. Acceptance of the deed was laid over until next week to allow time for preparing the usual resolution.

Specifications were presented for the laying of water mains on Brewster avenue, Broadway, the County Road and the Dingee property, to connect with the new reservoir. Street Superintendent Dickie stated that it would be some time before the work would be ready, and approval of the specifications was laid over pending the adoption of the proposed alien labor resolution.

The ordinance amending the existing liquor ordinance was introduced. The amendments are those suggested at a a previous meeting by the committee on public morals.

Clerk Plump reported that the cost of loose leaf books for city records would not exceed $15 each. He was given authority to purchase two books for records of the Council and ordinances.

E. L. Reese, of San Francisco, owner of the Reese addition, addressed the Board in reference to his position in the disputed lines of Oak street. Mr. Reece explained the reason for his reservation of a one-foot strip along his property by the statement that at the time Oak street was laid out he had endeavored to induce the owners of the Wooster, Whitton & Montgomery tract to dedicate one-half of the land for a street. This they had refused to do, and as a consequence he had taken from his property the entire land for a 50-foot street, in addition to the strip reserved, and had improved the street at his own expense. He had no desire to stand in the way of improvement, and had made an offer to the owners of the property in the Wooster, Whitton & Montgomery tract to surrender all rights, including the one-foot strip, provided he was paid for one-half of the land he had surrendered for street purposes, which would entail an approximate cost of $1 per lineal foot. This proposal was under consideration and he believed would be accepted. The Trusees were not prepared to take action in the matter at this time, and Mr. Reece was informed that he would be notified before action was taken.

Charles Lucher's public automobile is busy night and day. It is one of the most useful conveniences in town and being in charge of a competent and courteous chauffeur is much in demand. Orders sent to the Del Monte hotel will be promptly responded to.

D. E. O'KEEFE, Editor and Proprietor

If Redwood City is to prosper as a business community, it must be made the home of the "bucket brigade" as well as the residence of the millionare. It is to the laborer and mechanic that the local merchant to a very large degree owes his prosperity. While the construction of good roads and automobile boulevards will do much to advertise the attractions of San Mateo County and should be encouraged, the business men of the city should not loose sight of the importance of making known the advantages offered here for factory sites. We have an abundance lands for this purpose and both water and rail transportation facilities, yet because of want of persistent activity other places are securing the location of manufacturing enterprises that by all claims of nature should be located here.

San Mateo has set her neighboring towns a splendid example in her celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of her municipal birth. Celebrations of this character, when properly and successfully conducted, as was this one, are certain to be of much local benefit. Not only is civic pride arroused and business stimulated, but in a practical way public attention is called to the attractions and advantages of the locality.

The people of San Mateo are to be congratulated upon the complete sucsuccess of their Carnival. Not only was the promised program of extensive entertainment faithfully carried out, but no single unpleasant incident occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion. The planning and execution of a program which shall entertain a throng of people for three days is no small task, and the committees upon whom fell this task deserve the thanks of the community for their successful work.

Employer and Employee.

The French government is today facing one of the most serious problems in the history of that republic. The strike of the employees of the postal employees appears to have augmented a feeling of discontent among the general working classes. There is grave apprehension that this may lead to a general strike. Should this occur, not only will the entire business of the country become paralized but revolution itself be threatened. This dread result can only be avoided by the most conservative action on both sides. While there probably is considerable cause for just complaint, both as to the conditions and remuneration of the employees of this department of the government, every means should be tried to secure the desired redress before the extreme measures of strike are resorted to. At the same time the employees are entitled to every possible consideration and courtesy at the hands of the officials with whom they are required to deal. There should be no manifestation of arrogance on the part of the officials.

This argument is equally true of the relations between the employee and employer in all countries. Care should always be taken on both sides to preserve as far as possible the most amicable relations. Under all circumstances the employee is entitled to just compensation for his services and to the provision of suitable conditions and surronndings under which to perform his labor. His efforts are as equally essential to the success of the enterprise in which he is employed as is the capital of his employer.

At the same time it is the duty of the employee to give to the interests of his employer the best efforts of which he is capable. Not only must the employee fully return the conrtesy and consideration which he rightfully demands for for himself, but it is his duty to return full value for the wage which he demands and receives. With these considerations fully observed on both sides, dangers of strikes and lockouts would be at least very materially lessened.

New Street Names.

Changes in the names of a number of the city streets, which has been under consideration for some time past, have now become an accomplished fact, and in the future these streets must be officially known by the new designations. In order to avoid confusion, it is essential that people should familiarize themselves with the changes and that the use of the old names should be entirely discontinued. Following is a complete list of the changes provided for in the ordinance:

First street, to Washington street;
Second street, to Webster street;
Third street, to Hamilton street;
Fourth street, to Winslow street;
Fifth street, to Marshall street;

Entertain Grand Master.

Two quite interesting events among the local fraternity of Odd Fellows marked the meeting of Bay View Lodge last Wednesday evening. These were an official visit from Grove L. Johnson, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of California, and the conferring of the initiatory degree upon two candidates. The occasion brought out an unusually large attendance of the members, who enjoyed the pleasures of the gathering until after midnight. The ceremonies of the degree were conferred by the officers of the lodge, who exhibited such marked proficiency as to call forth especial commendation from the Grand Master.

After the usual business of the evening had been disposed of, the members were addressed at some length by the Grand Master. After congratulating the Lodge upon the evidences of its prosperity indicated by increasing membership and the possession of a splendid hall property free from debt the Grand Master dwelt eloquently upon the duties of Odd Fellows, both to the Order and to society in general. After the session of the Lodge the distinguished visitor was entertained at a banquet.

Forresters Will Build.

Estimates for the lodge hall for the Forestres of America were opened in the office of Architect Olive on Thursday and were as follows: H. W. Lampkin, $5690.10, George Donnelly, $6590, J. E. Warner, $5708.50, Olsen and Le Croix, $5256, E. J.Kingha, m$5727, P. A. Roussell $5984, Winter, Allen Company, $6555, A. N. Mills, $5640. The plans will be somewhat modified before the contract is awarded. The hall will be erected on the property of the Foresters on the corner of Maple and Phelps street and it will be one of the finest in the county.

Has Faith in Redwood.

Curran C. Clarke, a Redwood City real estate dealer, was here with his wife yesterday. Mr. Clarke stated that he looked upon Santa Cruz and Redwood City realty as the best propositions available for investment long the Southern Pacific coast line berween San Francisco and Los Angeles. Redwood City expects to become an imporatnt manufacturing center by reason of its nearness to the Dumbarton cutoff and its San Francisco water front facilities.—Santa Cruz Evening News.

Frank Fitzpatrick, having completed a course in the business college, has entered the Redwood City Commercial Bank, having determined to follow a business career.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.

WHEREAS, Hugh S. Dimond, of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, did execute a certain deed of trust, dated July 21, 1905, to R. McColgan, as trustee, for the benefit and security of Daniel A. McColgan, which deed of trust was recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, on the 5th day of October, 1905, in Vol. 2117 of Deeds, page 394, and following, and which said deed of trust was also recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California on the 19th day of October, 1905, in Vol. 116 of Deeds, page 379 and following, which said deed of trust is hereby referred to and hereby made a part of this notice.

AND WHEREAS, the promissory notes held by said Daniel A. McColgan to secure the payment of which notes and future advances, said deed of trust was executed, is now past due and default has been made by said Hugh S. Dimond in the payment of said promissory notes and future advances;

AND WHEREAS, demand has been made by said Daniel A. McColgan upon said trustee, to sell the real estate described in said deed of trust under the power and authority conferred upon him in said deed of trust to satisfy said indebtedness;

NOW THEREFORE, in accordance with the terms and under the authority of said deed of trust and in conformity with the aforesaid terms, the undersigned as trustee does hereby give notice that on the 19th day of July, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon of said day, at the office of R. McColgan, 26 Montgomery street, Room 314, in the city and county of San Francisco, State of California, the trustee will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in gold coin of the United States all the real estate described in the aforesaid deed of trust, which said real property is situated in the City and County of San Francisco, and the County of San Mateo, State of California, and particularly bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

NOTICE.

Office of the Tax Collector of the County of San Mateo, State of California.
Redwood City, June 5th, 1909.

I hereby give notice to all delinquent tax payers and property owners mentioned, set forth and described in the foregoing Delinquent List in and for the County of San Mateo, State of California, that unless the taxes delinquent, together with the costs and penalties as in said delinquent List are paid prior to Monday, June 28th, 1909, the Tax Collector of said County will on the 28th day of June, 1909, in the office of the Tax Collector, in the Court House at Redwood City, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., of said day, sell to the State of California, as provided in Section 3771 of the Political Code of the State of California, all the real property mentioned, set forth and described in said Delinquent List, and upon which said taxes are a lien.

C. L. McCracken,
Tax Collector.

CRUELTIES IN CHINA.

Torture of Prisoners Carried to Point of Refinement.

HOME OF THE WATER DEATH.

A Worse Infliction Than That of Being Tied to a Beam by the Thumbs and Big Toes—The Bastinado and Flogging With Split Bamboo.

China is a land of contradictions and mysteries. It bristles with surprises. The phlegmatic nature of its natives is in marked contrast to their inherent cruelty.

"What a poor, weak looking baby!" you might say to a Chinaman about his offspring, and he will merely shrug his shoulders in reply. Meet him in a month's time and ask him how the youngster is getting on.

"The disease was a fatal one," he will answer, with another significant shrug. If the child were a girl you could safely draw your own conclusions as to its fate. John Chinaman has no use for deformed or very sickly children, particularly girls.

Torture of prisoners has been carried to a point of refinement. One of the most terrible was surely the cage in which a man was placed so that his head just protruded at the top, while his toes only touched the ground sufficiently to prevent dislocation of the neck.

His hands were bound behind him so that he could not relieve himself, and he was left to be jeered at by the public until hunger and exhaustion put an end to his sufferings.

The day of the bastinado, too, is by no means over. The prisoner is strung up in a reverse condition, and the naked soles of his feet are pounded with a cane, with the result that the victim seldom recovers.

But the more common form of flogging is to beat the thighs with the concave side of a split bamboo, which cuts at every stroke into the flesh.

China, by the way, was the home of that terrible death by water drops. The victim's head was placed on a low hard, block, and drops of water at short intervals were allowed to fall from a height on to his forehead—a far, far worse infliction than that of being tied to a beam by the thumbs and big toes.

The cangue is regarded as a comparatively mild sort of punishment. This consists of a wooden collar, about four feet square and four inches thick, which is placed over the prisoner's head, so that its full weight falls on the shoulders.

A description of the offense is also attached to the victim's body, and as he cannot feed himself he has to rely on the public for sustenance.

Conservative to a degree, it is not surprising to find that the wheelbarrow as a passenger conveyance is still in vogue, as, too, is the ferry, consisting of a light canoe, towed across the water by a number of swimmers.

Machinery for the most part is despised, and the mill, still used for winnowing the staple diet, rice, is of the simplest and most out of date description possible.

The rice is placed in a cement basin, over which is a heavy stone at the end of a long lever. This is worked up and down by two boards, in the form of a cross, attached to the axle of a huge hand turned wheel.

For simplicity of keeping a city informed of the time Canton would be hard to beat. In one of the temples are four large earthen jars on successive shelves.

Water descends by slow drops from one to the other, a brass scale on a float in the bottom one indicating as it rises the hour of the day.

At 5 o'clock every afternoon the lowest jar is emptied and the upper one refilled. On the outside walls of the city are displayed boards with the number of the hour on them, so that all may see. And this has gone on without a break since 1321.

Funerals appear almost a mockery to the visitor. If money can be freely spent a manager is appointed, and from the highways and the byways street boys and beggars are collected, dressed up in amazing costumes, supplied with dazzling umbrellas, standards and boards, which are carried over their shoulders in a long straggle.

Others carry small houses and carts made of card paper, horses, men, women, etc., indicative of the dead one's treasures, and these, with heaps of paper coins and paper money, are burned at the grave so that they may be enjoyed in the life beyond.

Hired mourners with cymbals, gongs and wind instruments keep up a continuous series of howls and noises, to which is added the boohoo, boohoo, of an ear racking horn worked something like a garden hose.

Women are regarded as nothing in China. They are brought up in ignorance of the world outside, the one object of their life being to get married and have sons to follow the fathers. A girl is not even allowed to look upon her husband until she is actually wedded.—London Ladies' Field.

Not Very Neighborlike.

Dugald—Yon was not a verra neighborlike thing to be doin', Angus, when you was telling the whole toon that I was drunk aal the week that we was in Glescow. Angus—I never said no sich word oot o' my lips, Dugald Mackay. Aal I said was that you was perfect sober on the Sabbath day!"—London Opinion.

Though you drive Nature out with a pitchfork, she always comes back.—German Proverb.

More Than Pleased.

"Did Miss Flavilla seem pleased when you asked her to go to the theater?"

"Pleased! She wanted to keep the tickets for fear something might happen to me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Gallant.

Beautiful Widow—Do you know, I'm forty years old today. Gallant Bachelor—Madam, you are just twenty. I never believe more than half of what I hear.

CENTRIFUGAL FORCE.

Some of the Wonderful Properties of Rapidly Revolving Bodies.

It is probably well known to our readers that by means of revolving soft copper disks, the edges of which are served with diamond dust by beating it in, diamonds can be sawed up. By means of sharp, rapidly revolving iron disks it is possible to cut through heavy steel armor plates of four to eight inches in thickness. These phenomena belong to a very interesting department in physics, the physics of revolving bodies, that doubtless still has a great deal that is remarkable to offer. The rotation of a wheel results in the phenomenon that keeps the wheelman or bicyclist without exertion free on his seat—i. e., the so called free axis. We can also observe it easily in a top, which, its equilibrium disturbed, as long as the rotation is rapid enough always resumes a certain position in regard to its axis without requiring pivot bearings. Rotation also exercises a tension producing effect on the substance of a revolving body, and it is this tension that imparts to the soft saws referred to their notable efficiency. If, for instance, a disk of thin cardboard is caused by a suitable transmission to rotate very rapidly on the lathe the rotatory tension causes the card to behave like sheet metal.

As the Natuwissenschaftliche Wochenschrift states, the cardboard can in such case no longer be bent and if struck with a hammer gives off a sound as though we were striking bronze. This is, however, only the beginning. If we place on the shaft of an electromotor a disk of good paper, cut into an exact circle about eight inches in diameter, this paper disk can be made at the highest rotating speed of the motor to saw through cigar box wood. At the cutting surface it acquires a fine brown polish. The publication in question shows other interesting experiments. We can, for instance, fit on the shaft of the rotatory apparatus a drum, about which may be passed an annular closed little chain in such a manner that at the highest rotatory speed of which the motor is capable it can be slipped off the drum. The chain will then behave like a solid ring, roll across the table and when it strikes the ground bounce up like a hoop. The active principle on which all these tension phenomena are based is centrifugal force.

BASEBALL STRATEGY.

A Bit of Quick Thinking and Good Play on the Diamond.

The quickest thinking I ever saw on a baseball field was done by Tommy McCarthy, the Boston outfielder of years ago. Tom Browne, one of the speediest runners that ever played baseball, was on second base, and New York needed one run to tie the score. Jack Doyle, then a great batter, was at bat, and it seemed certain that a base hit by Doyle would tie the score and perhaps win the game, as there was but one out, and Browne was so speedy he could score from second base on almost any kind of a safe hit. McCarthy crept closer to the infield on left, realizing that, although he could throw with wonderful rapidity and accuracy, the chances were all against throwing Browne out at the plate unless he was close and the ball came to him quickly. Doyle drove a hard line hit straight to the left field. Browne went scudding toward third base. Doyle raced for first, and McCarthy plunged forward at top speed. The fielder reached the ball on its first bound, grabbed it and without stopping or looking threw with terrific force and perfect aim across the diamond into the first baseman's hands. Browne had stopped at third base. Doyle, who had turned first with the intention of sprinting to second, was caught standing still ten feet from first. The next batter went out on a fly, and Boston won the game.

After the game I asked McCarthy concerning the play. "Well," he explained, "Browne is a quick thinker. He saw just how hard that ball was hit and knew he would be thrown out at the plate unless I fumbled. Doyle doesn't think very fast, and, knowing that he would turn first and stop to see if I was throwing home, I threw across to first and caught him."

He figured that out while the ball was screaming through the air toward him, probably reaching his conclusions and making the decision in four-fifths of a second.—Hugh S. Fullerton in American Magazine.

"Handle With Care."

In her assumed character of mother little Miss Dorothy, "going on five," spanked her new doll so vigorously that the eyes dropped out. This accident seemed to make quite an impression on the young lady, and when it came her turn to be reproved in the good old fashioned way a few days later she glanced up from her mother's knee as the exercises were about to begin and plaintively observed:

"Better not spank too hard, mamma. 'Member what happened to the doll!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Familiar Trait.

"After an absence of twenty years a Chicago man walked in on his wife the other day. She didn't recognize him. He sat down and kicked because dinner was late."

"Then she recognized him, eh?"—Kansas City Journal.

Daylight Only.

Mrs. Baker—Mrs. Smith is wearing light mourning. Bobbie—What is light mourning, ma? Mrs. Baker—It's the kind that permits you to go to matinees, but not to evening performances.—Lippincott's.

Her Reason.

He—Do you know any good reason why women should vote?

She—Yes, I do.

"What is it?"

"Well, because."—Yonkers Statesman.

In Spite of It.

Mother—And when he proposed did you tell him to see me? Daughter—Yes, mamma, and he said he'd seen you several times, but he wanted to marry me just the same.—Sphinx.

IN A COPPER CAMP.

Its Divisions Known as "Drill Town" and "Slag Town."

A copper camp has its own characteristics peculiar and apart. It has two distinct classes of workmen—the skilled miners, who work under ground, and the smelter men, who range from experience and scientific training to unskilled day laborers.

More often than not they form separate camps within the camp—"Drill Town," as the "slag pushers" call the quarter given over to the men who "hit the drill," and "Slag Town" or "Little Hades" for the smelter men.

The smelter is the heart of the camp. In the community there is every variety of camp architecture, from the tent pure and simple and the "half breed house," which is a tent floored and boarded up along the sides to the turn of the roof and fitted with a "sure enough door" that will lock, to the hotel like a huge packing box with rows and rows of little, narrow windows set along the sides like polka dots on a shirt waist and a flat roof that does not reach an inch beyond the sides, the whole painted a faded green and jaundiced over with the red dust.

A great copper camp grows slowly. When there is a town above ground there is something like it below—tunnels, stations, stopes, workings reaching out like streets and alleys to follow the vagaries of the lead. There is no gutting of a rich ledge and going on, no careless search for "pockets" to be robbed and left.

With scientific skill and mathematical precision each yard of work is driven to open up the best road to ore still beyond and to leave a safe and convenient way by which it may reach the surface. Nature has rooted her wealth of copper deep in the earth, and no haphazard methods will release it profitably. It would amuse or bewilder an old time gold miner to see the care and economy practiced in modern copper mining—the small savings, the constant search for better methods of handling, the struggle to eliminate waste and utilize all the by-products.—Out West.

THE MARITIME EXCHANGE.

It Keeps Posted on Every Vessel Engaged In Commerce.

It is a fact not generally known that the arrival and departure of steam and sailing vessels engaged in commerce is reported daily from every port in the world. Sitting in the Maritime Exchange, you could tell at a glance just what had transpired in shipping circles of any port during the past twenty-four hours. There is a report on every ship that has cleared or entered. The report gives the name of her home port, how many days out, her cargo, the number of passengers, her consignors and consignees, her destination and her captain's name. The companies themselves and underwriters and forwarders station these agents all over the map, and the agents are like so many train dispatchers on land reporting the movements of every piece of "rolling" stock under the reign of maritime law. The number of men engaged on shore in the business of sailing ships is twice as great as the number managing those same ships on the ocean.

In any given company the organization represents a great pyramid of brains and brawn, authority percolating down through the maze of detail from the man who draws a princely salary studying the Mercator projection to the stevedore who shifts freight. Every man has his work cut out for him.

Every steamer that floats is considered as a unit. It is a semi-independent state the moment it leaves shore. It has its orders just the same as a battalion of soldiers on the battlefield, and on its bridge walks the captain, who holds almost arbitrary power over the destinies of his floating community.—Bookkeeper.

Dowries In India.

The custom of extorting dowries has grown into the very fabric of the social life and is a standing disgrace to the Bengali community, which has no justification to plead or apology to offer. The practice has now assumed alarming proportions of parents of boys extorting costly dowries as a condition of marrying their sons. The marriage of a daughter among Bengalis has become an expensive affair, and the amount in cash demanded by the father or guardian of the boy and paid by the father or guardian of the bride varies with the educational attainments of the bridegroom.—Indian Nation.

Self Tending Beacons.

The acetylene lighted buoys of the Swedish coast keep in action seventy days without renewal of the single tubes of fifty liters of dissolved acetylene. Ingenious automatic lighting makes this possible. A bright reflecting surface and a black absorbing one give unequal expansion by daylight, thus closing a valve and shutting off the gas, but at night this action ceases, the valve opens, and the gas, automatically lighted, continues burning.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not Silent.

"I am sealing this letter with a silent kiss," he wrote to her, and just then he dropped a little of the hot wax on his thumb and let out a howl of pain that could be heard clear around the corner.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

JARRED THE SULTAN.

Advice General Wallace Is Said to Have Given Abdul Hamid II.

When General Lew Wallace was the American plenipotentiary in Constantinople he saw Abdul Hamid II. at close quarters—too close for comfort really—but his involuntary inspection was decidedly convincing as to the sultan's timidity.

It seems that from the day of his presentation to the sultan the general had grown in favor at the court and was frequently "commanded" to attend merely from the personal liking of Abdul Hamid for the American minister and the enjoyment of conversation with him. In those days the sultan was particularly vexed over affairs in Egypt. He felt that Egypt was his personal property, yet England had taken the control of the country out of his hands entirely. She had hardly said "by your leave," but had "advised" him that for the good of Egypt he, Abdul Hamid II., had better let her and then had gone ahead.

He had accepted the advice because he had nothing to say "no" with. Without a fleet what could any one say to England? This forced acquiescence worried the sultan continuously until he could not endure longer without madness. In his distress he summoned General Wallace and described to him in detail his humiliating condition.

The general listened with friendly sympathy, and the sultan, being relieved in thus talking in confidence to a man whom he knew to be sincere and altogether free from selfish interests, asked the minister what he could do under the circumstances. General Wallace said that he appreciated the trust and confidence of the sultan, but that, being the representative officially of the United States of America, he could not advise the ruler of another country as to what steps that ruler should take against a third power, especially when this third power was on friendly terms with his own country.

The sultan acknowledged the correctness of this position, but besought the general to make an exception, saying that there was no other man in the empire to whom he could go for one single word of honest, disinterested advice. But the general repeated that he could not be false to his duty as a minister and envoy from his government.

Then said the sultan, "Tell me as a private individual; tell me as a friend."

This appeal touched General Wallace deeply, and he said, "As a friend, then, and a private citizen, I will say this, that were I in the position you have described to me I should put myself at the head of my troops and fight to the bitter end."

At these words the blood left the sultan's face, and he fell to the floor in a dead faint. He felt their truth, and he knew, furthermore, that he lacked the strength of character, th force, the will power, to carry out such a program.

What would have happened had the sultan's heart been physically weak as well is not easy to conjecture. As it was, General Wallace did not leave the Yildiz kiosk until long after the hour he had intended, and Abdul Hamid II. never again sought a confidential interview with the author of "Ben-Hur."—New York Press.

Painfully Clean.

Amsterdam enjoys an enviable reputation for its cleanliness. Owen Feltham, who visited Holland in the seventeenth century, was particularly impressed by the spotlessness of its streets and houses. "Whatsoever their estates be," he writes, "their houses must be fair. Therefore from Amsterdam they have banished seacole, lest it soyle their buildings. Every door seems studded with diamonds. The nails and hinges hold a constant brightness, as if rust there was not a quality incident to iron. Their houses they keep cleaner than their bodies, their bodies than their souls. Goe to one, you shall find the andirons shut up in network; at a second, the warming pan muffled in Italian cutworke; at a third, the sconce clad in cambrick."

What Money Can't Buy.

Money can't buy everything. There are no admission tickets to a sunset. You wouldn't trade the look in your boy's eyes when he greets you at night for a million dollars of anybody's money, and if you keep a well furnished mind you can go into it any time you like as you would into a child's playground and amuse yourself watching your thoughts play leapfrog with each other.—Lillian Pascal Day in Success Magazine.

Faithful Girl.

"You know, Miss Blank," said the proprietor of a railroad station restaurant, "there is a great deal in having your sandwiches look attractive."

Puzzles.

Oh, the chemists have perplexed us
Till we find we cannot state
Where the viands that have vexed us
Really originate.
When an unfamiliar savor
Marks the fruits that used to suit,
Is it a benzoic flavor
Or a failure of the fruit?

If you have to read the label
On each bottle that is sold
Before you are truly able
To decide what it may hold,
When with citizens too frisky
The police are playing tag,
How shall they distinguish whisky
From an imitation jag?

Women Golfers Hold Tournament--To Open Summer Camp--Will Build Palatial Home.

MENLO PARK, June 16—The Ravenswood people are feeling elated over the prospects of a new electric road to be constructed from Palo Alto to Cooley's landing. The stakes are driven in the ground and it seems probable that work will begin the first of the month.

Quong Fong Lee, the old Chinese Laundry man, while driving through Palo Alto during the week delivering washing was arrested because the style of his horse did not please the Humane Society of that place. The old man was thrown into prison and remained there for some time until he could communicate with his countrymen. He was finally let out and after delivering laundry about town on foot walked home and, returned with $15, the amount of his fine. He was compelled to buy another horse to suit the whims of the Humane society. The poor old celestial had to endure all this hardship, but then he is only a Chinaman and what do the Humane Society of Palo Alto care?

Many from here attended the entertainment given by the St. Thomas guild at Palo Alto Wednesday evening. The show was a very creditable one and much enjoyed by the local visitors.

The choir at the Catholic church has been supplemented with several male and one female voice.

Judge Graham has been here during the week looking up a suitable residdence for the summer.

The cadets are preparing to give a minstrel show on July 16th. There are some good burned cork artists among the Company and they ought to give a first-class performance.

O'Kane and Welch, the new real estate firm, report a brisk business in local property. The firm is kept busyanswering inquiries and will soon close some big deals.

Stakes were set last Monday for the proposed electric line from Palo Alto to the campus. These stakes begin opposite Embarcadero road and extend in a direct line just east of the faculty club house through to the County Road back of the University. The work is in charge of the same men who surveyed the line for the Mayfield cutoff.

Dr. and Mrs. Washington Dodge are among those who are enjoying the delights of the Yosemite Valley. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hayes Smith left today in their motor for the world--famed valley where they expect to join Dr. and Mrs. Dodge.

Mrs. Kate Elkins will be here on the first of July from Philadelphia accompanied by her son and daughter. They will spend the summer as the guests of C. N. Felton. Mrs. Elkins usually arrives here earlier but this year she was detained by her son who is a tending an eastern college from which he is to graduate next week with high honors. His mother will attend the closing exercises of the college and will see her son receive his sheepskin.

FACES TERM IN PRISON

Alleged Bigamist Indulges In Incriminating Corespondence to Two Women.

V. A. McCreery, the bigamist brought form Portland last week by Sheriff Chatham, was held over to appear before the Superior Court by Judge McSweeney, sitting for Judge Hannon yestrday, and his bond fixed in the sum of $4000. According to the evidence presented McCreery must be a scoundrel of the deepest die. He deserted his first wife last March at Riverside and going to Redlands he became acquainted with Mary White and was married to her by Judge Hannon at Redwoodd City on April 20th last. The pair then went to Portland where McCreery engaged in the drug business. The father of the bride learning that McCreery had another wife swore to a complaint and had him brought here. Letters were produced yesterday which had been written to both women asking for forgiveness. McCreery is a very intelligent man and a letter writer of more than ordinary ability. After his incarcaration in Portland he wrote a pathetic letter to his wife Myrtle in Riverside in which he asked her forgiveness for his wrong doing and pleaded eloquently for the sake of their two children for her not to appear against him. He solemnly pleded himself to make amends claiming weakness was the cause of his downfall. He spoke of her goodness, purity and chastity and begged her to be merciful in his hour of woe and sorrow. With the cunning of a scoundrel he spoke disparagingly of the character of Miss White, wifeNo. 2. To show his duplicity he wrote an other letter to Miss White asking for forgiveness and mercy and plead that if he secured his freedom he would get a divorce and legally mary her. Miss White stated on the stand that McCreery told her he was a single man and under that condition she married him.

McCreery took the stand on his own behalf and pleaded that he supposed he was separated from his wife, that on one occasion she had attempted to poison him, that hegave her money to get a divorce and supposed that she had secured one. He did not love her, and never had a happy day with her, however he loved his two children and often visited them after he had left his wife. District Attorney Bullock called his attention to the pleading letters to his wife. He explained that he was under a great mental strain when he wrote them, that he was not sincere and only sent them to placate an avenging woman. In regard to the reflection on Miss White he said that was simply a slip of the pen.

McCreery lead a dual life in the south and his duplicity in which he betrayed a loving wife and triffled with the affections of an innocent girl is a tounding.

Miss White is a comely little woman not more than 20 years old, with large brown eyes and a sweet, innocent face. McCreery is 28 years old and is a native of Maryland. It is supposed he will plead guilty in the Superior Court.

Mrs. Nellie Cracknell, an old pioneer of Moss Beach, died at her home there Wednesday after a short ilness. Deceased was 60 years old and spent the major portion of her life on the coast side of the county. She sold her property at Moss Beach some time ago for $7000. Mrs. Cracknell was well known in Redwood City.

HAPPENINGS AT PESCADERO

Interesting Items Gathered by Live Correspondents at Belmont and Woodside.

SAN MATEO, June 18—Where Burlingame failed San Mateo succeeded yesterday, and the territory known as San Mateo Park is to be annexed to San Mateo.

An election to decide this point was held in San Mateo and San Mateo Park yesterday. In the former place the vote stood 223 for annexation and six against. In San Mateo Park the vote was 37 for and 13 against.

This is a portion of the same territory which it was recently sought to annex to Burlingame, and there is much rejoicing in San Mateo over the result.

Woodside News Items.

WOODSIDE, June 18.—The bond election held at Portola last Monday resulted in 22 votes being cast for the bonds and none against. The bond issue is for $4000 and is for the erection of a new school building. The Trustees who are all enterprising business men, propose to erect a schoolhouse that will be a credit to this growing community.

There was some talk of having a Fourth of July celebration here this year but unfortunately the project has fallen through. A celebration here would bring people from all portions of the country who would enjoy the day here in the fairest portion of the county.

The Woodside grammar school closed last Friday for a six weeks vacation. The popular teacher, Miss Ethel McEvoy, will spend her well earned vacation at the sea shore.

Woodsie is rapidly becoming the most popular suburban resort in the county. Many fine homes are being erected here and it is becoming the residence of the San Francisco business man and professional man.

Thos. Kelly is building an addition of three rooms to his residence at Portola. The work is being done by Weeden Brothers of Menlo Park. Tom makes a habit of adding a room or two to his building every year.

Big Game Tomorrow.

Twirler Benham of San Francisco, will perform the pitching stunt for Redwood tomorrow against the Castro Parlor baseball club.

Back of him Ed Heaney, Jim Maloney, Ed Williamana, Jack Guilfoy, Joe Botto, Henry Beeger, Emile Allain and Fred Barg will make a team that will keep the Castro boys jumping sideways to beat.

The local indians have their war paint on for any pitcher who dares to invade this neck of the woods, clubs, tomahawks, bows and arrows are prepared yells and dances down to a hickey, feathers are in the regalia, squaw and pa osse ready, the fire lit, the silence which fortells a storm is on, only the appearance of a ball club with a pitcher is needed to start what will be a terrific battle.

2 o'clock at the ball grounds. Get a ticket.

Of the game last Sunday much could be said, but the least probably the better. Redwood lost after an exciting struggle to the Reliance club. The victory left no scars on our local teams work and no credit can be seen perching upon the laurel tree of the visitors. They were lucky to get away with it. Score 12 to 10.

Pasenger Agents Visit Expo.

Twenty Southern Pacific Passenger Agents from all parts of the Pacific System visited the Alaska-Youkon-Pacific Exposition recently and were unanimous in their praises of all that they saw. Its a wonder, unique among all similar expositions. It tells a big story to people of all this nation, a true story of what there is to be found today in Alaska and the great Northwest. Every building was ready on opening day, June 1st, and flags flying and bands playing just as they will continue until closing day, October 15th. The exposition as it stands represents an investment of about ten million dollars. The Forestry building, made of monster timber from the forests of Washington is the most remarkable of all buildings, while the Alaska exhibit tells in detail of the country that has yieldedl two hundred and ninety-six million dollars worth of products in the past thirty years. The buildings and grounds are remarkably arranged so that one can get bout easily without weariness and all details are most artistic in conception.

ROMANCE ENDS IN ENGAGEMENT

Victim of College Hazing Will Wed Girl Who Nursed Him.

Albert De Rome, who attended the high school a few years ago, is soon to be married and surrounding the wedding is a pretty story ofa girl's constancy to a sweetheart who lay helpless for months following a brutal hazing at Hopkins Art College, San Francisco, came to light yesterday with the announcement of the engagement of Miss Martha Sale, an artist, to Albert De Rome, an employee of the J. Charles Green Company. The announcement was made at the home of Mrs. William Hinkle, 2228 Clay street, San Francisco, at a tea, attended by many of Miss Sale's friends.

It was while De Rome and Miss Sale were students at the art college that they first met. Then came the hazing of De Rome which made him apparenly at hopeless paralytic.

Through long months of illness the slight figure of the pretty art student was ever before De Rome's eyes. Finaly he was nursed back to robust health, to a recovery that permitted him again to claim the hand that had bravely clung to his.

De Rome has now completely recovered, and he will make Miss Sale his bride June 29th.

Miss Sale is a daughter of William T. Sale of Berkeley, and Mrs. Hinkle, at whose home the tea was given, is a life-long friend. The Hinkle home was prettily decorated yesterday for the announcement party, the color scheme in the drawing and dining-rooms being pink and white.
